Dear Mr Kohler

It is a pleasant & moving experience for any man to find that he has an understanding friend whom he has never met.

As to the merits of your article - The Bookman I am not, of course, competent to judge. I say however that your account of the springs of my work is accurate, that you have in every case understood what I was "up to" as far as I myself can understand it: & that your diagnosis of my weakness is entirely accurate.

I will try to degenerate your good opinion: & will keep always the memory of pages that are a real & tangible encouragement to me, & help me to believe in myself — which I find always the most difficult exercise of faith!

With my best thanks, & with every good wish to you,
I remain
passionately
yours.
